RELATED EXPERIENCE

Brain Balance – Springfield, PA

Current position

- I work with the students in our center to stimulate their brains and progress them to appropriate grade level processing. Neuro-academics combine neuropsychological principles of cognitive skills training, like executive functioning, with academic skill building.
- Focus on a brain-based approach to education and learning that goes way beyond the traditional teaching or tutoring techniques.
- Target specific deficient cognitive skills and academic subject areas in an effort to not only improve skills but, more importantly, stimulate growth and development in the part of the brain that controls those skills. In this way, we are not just compensating for a weakness; we are correcting the problem for lasting results.
